

https://www.abc12.com/news/state/bill-would-increase-testing-rules-for-elderly-michigan-drivers/article_a8c5ef70-f532-42bd-bb41-9b54324afb15.html

Bill would increase testing rules for elderly Michigan drivers

Ryan Jeltema

Mar 26, 2026

Jack Wyrad, 92, reverses his GM Buick in Los Angeles Thursday, Aug. 30, 2012. Wyrad, who got a perfect score on his written test for his license two years ago, says he believes older people should make their own decisions on when to quit driving. On Thursday another licensed Los Angeles driver, 100 years old, accidentally backed his Cadillac into a group of schoolchildren, injuring 11 people. The accident has renewed a debate over when elderly people should quit driving. (AP Photo/Damian Dovarganes)

Damian Dovarganes

LANSING, Mich. (WJRT) - Michigan drivers age 75 or older may be required to pass additional tests to keep their licenses under a bill introduced to the Legislature last week.

Senate Bill 847 would require drivers to pass vision, written knowledge and driving skills tests at a Michigan Secretary of State branch office every four years beginning on their 75th birthday.

The bill would require annual vision, knowledge and driving skills tests in a Secretary of State office beginning at age 85.

Democrat State Sen. Rosemary Bayer of Bloomfield introduced the bill on March 18. WWJ Radio in Detroit is reporting that she heard from a widower whose wife was hit and killed by a 94-year-old driver in 2024.

Bayer's bill was referred to the Senate Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure for consideration. It had not come up for a vote by Thursday morning.

The bill would have to pass both chambers of the Michigan Legislature before it would head to Gov. Gretchen Whitmer's desk to be signed into law or vetoed.

Elderly couple and their dog killed in Shiawassee County crash

Ryan Jeltema

81-year-old stuck in snowbank survives nearly a week on croissants and candy

By Cheri Mossburg, CNN

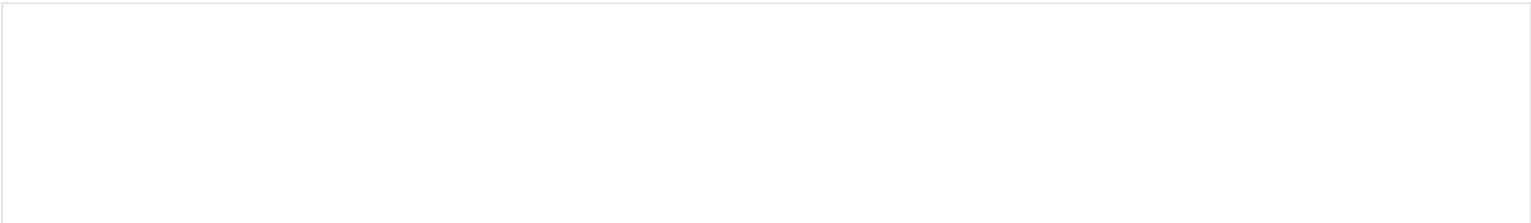

84-year-old dies, cow euthanized after head-on collision

By: Ryan Jeltema

Subscribe to receive breaking news, daily headlines, latest forecast, local sports and more with ABC12 News email alerts.

MORE INFORMATION

Flint seniors learn estate planning at free community lunch

Tags

- Driving
- Transport
- Vehicles
- Government
- Vehicle Operation
- Political Events
- Land Transport
- Michigan
- Ageism
- Government Institutions
- Democracy
- Accountability
- Governance
- Politics
- Legislative Chambers
- Lansing, Michigan
- Detroit
- Michigan Secretary Of State

Ryan Jeltema

Digital News Producer

TOP VIDEOS