The FBI Wants to Buy Nationwide Access to License Plate Readers

 JOSEPH COX · MAY 18, 2026 AT 2:19 PM

Only a couple vendors could likely fulfill what the FBI is after, namely Flock and Motorola.

The FBI wants to buy access to automated license plate readers (ALPRs) nationwide, which would likely allow the agency to track the movements of vehicles—and by extension people—across the country without a warrant, according to FBI procurement records reviewed by 404 Media.

The documents show that ALPRs continue to be a sought-after tool for law enforcement, not just for local police and individual communities, but federal agencies too. The news also comes as protests and pushback against ALPRs have spread around the country.

Do you work at Flock or Motorola? I would love to hear from you. Using a non-
