Where a Super Speeder Will Kill Next: New York's Top 10 Most Reckless Drivers & Their Favorite Intersections

New research from Transportation Alternatives and Families for Safe Streets identifies the top ten most reckless drivers in New York and the locations where they most frequently endanger New Yorkers' lives.

NEW YORK – After a “super speeder” with 29 red light and school zone speed camera tickets on her record sped through a red light in Midwood, Brooklyn last week, killing a mother and her two young daughters in the crosswalk, Transportation Alternatives investigated the New Yorkers with the most school zone speed camera tickets and the locations where they most frequently break the law.

“These results point to a small population with a shocking pattern of recidivism, resistance to traditional deterrents, and disregard for human life,” said Transportation Alternatives Executive Director Ben Furnas. “Luckily, we have a solution that will keep New Yorkers safe: the Stop Super Speeders bill that would require speed limiters in the vehicles of the worst-of-the-worst repeat offenders. It’s time for Albany to pass this legislation now before the next deadly crash.”

“School zone speed cameras have been shown to change the behavior of the vast majority of drivers, but a small group of reckless New Yorkers still drive like they’re above the law,” said Amber Adler, a member of Families for Safe Streets. “A few weeks ago, one of those drivers sped through a red light and killed a mother and her two young daughters, near my neighborhood in Brooklyn — a crash that could have been prevented if the New York State legislature had taken action on common sense legislation and passed the Stop Super Speeders bill last year. This report provides a road map to where we can predict the most reckless drivers will eventually kill someone unless Albany acts this session.”

TA identified the top 10 super speeders – New Yorkers with the most school zone speed camera violations in New York State, many with hundreds of tickets – and the intersections where they most frequently endanger New Yorkers. The report also identifies the borough and recurrently terrorize the same locations.

houses of worship within a half-mile of the 10 intersections where super speeders most frequently terrorize New Yorkers.

3. The #1 top super speeder received more than 560 school zone speed camera tickets last year — at least one every 16 hours — including 70 at Ocean Parkway and Ocean Court, less than two miles away from the Midwood intersection where another super speeder killed a mother and her two young daughters. Already in 2025, the #1 super speeder has collected more than 165 school zone speed camera tickets — more than one a day.
4. The top ten super speeders received an average of 36 tickets at a single intersection, with one super speeder receiving 70 tickets at the same intersection last year, and two others receiving 57 and 50 at their most frequented intersections.
5. Fines are not enough for these super speeders. Of the top 10, three have paid off all or significant portions of all of their fines, ranging from $17,000-$45,000 each, a total of more than $108,000. The other seven have paid off little or none, and owe, on average, $28,000 each — a total of $200,000.
6. 70% of the 10 super speeders are driving brand-new cars purchased in the past two years, and include a 2023 Audi A6 and 2022 Land Rover Range Rover. Vehicles with the majority of their fines unpaid include a 2020 Mercedes-Benz CLA-Class, a 2022 Chrysler Pacifica, and a 2023 Chevrolet Suburban.
7. All of the top ten concentrate their speeding geographically, with an average of 88% of their speeding tickets occurring within a single borough.

Clear patterns of recidivism point to the need for a more aggressive and systemized approach to these super speeders. This session, the New York State legislature has a chance to pass the Stop Super Speeders bill (A2299 / S4045) — which would require drivers with repeat school zone speed camera violations to have a speed limiter installed on their car, automatically limiting their vehicle to within 5 mph of the speed limit of any given road. Since Columbia and Virginia, and passed the state statehouses far more politically divided than

Methodology

This report uses public data on school zone speed camera tickets published in the Parking Violations datasets by the New York City Department of Finance, broken down by fiscal year, and accessible via the How's My Driving website. We identified the top speeders with New York State plates, including all vehicle types and license plate categories, and identified the boroughs and intersections where they received speeding tickets in 2024.
